When central office leaders understand SEL research and practices, they are able to promote and sustain systemic implementation.

Strengthen Central Office Expertise

Below you’ll find an overview of: WHAT high-quality implementation looks like, WHY it’s important, WHEN to engage in this key activity, and WHO to involve. Also see the process page for step-by-step guidance on how to engage in the work, and the resources page for additional tools to support your efforts.

What does it mean to strengthen central office SEL expertise?

When you strengthen SEL expertise, you ensure that leaders and staff across the district develop a strong knowledge base in SEL research, theory, and implementation methods.

A strong approach to strengthening central office expertise includes:

- Providing professional learning that relates to SEL research and practice to central office leaders and staff from all departments.
- Providing foundational professional learning as onboarding for new staff.
- Supporting central office staff in understanding their role in integrating SEL into their area of work and speaking clearly about the value of SEL.
- Convening SEL learning communities among central office staff.

Use the Rubric to assess your approach to strengthening central office expertise.

In order to understand their role in integrating SEL into their work and speak clearly about the value of SEL, staff need to understand:

- The framework for systemic social and emotional learning, including the five core social and emotional competencies and how to reinforce these competencies across district, schools, communities, and home.
- The approaches used to foster SEL.
- The impact of SEL on academics, behavior, and life outcomes.
- How SEL supports educational equity and inclusive learning environments.
- How SEL supports the district’s overall vision and goals.

Why is it important to build SEL expertise in the central office?

The more that leaders in the central office understand the practices and benefits of SEL, the better they’ll be able to promote and sustain systemic SEL implementation districtwide. This ensures that SEL is not siloed into a single department or viewed as a stand-alone initiative, but ingrained into all of the district’s work.

Leaders who have a solid knowledge base in SEL can also work more effectively to advocate and budget for SEL in the district and in the classroom, and identify specific opportunities within their departments for integrating and promoting SEL.
SEL expertise allows district leaders to:

- Communicate the importance of SEL to schools, funders, students, families, and the community.
- Make strategic and budgetary decisions informed by SEL priorities.
- Identify new opportunities for promoting SEL.
- Embed SEL into various professional learning, resources, frameworks, and guidance.

When should my district begin building expertise in SEL?

Ideally, building SEL expertise is one of the first steps for districtwide adoption of SEL. Begin with core district leaders, including the superintendent, cabinet members, board members, and those who are directly responsible for leading key aspects of SEL implementation. After these leaders have established a foundational level of SEL knowledge to support SEL policy and implementation, you can begin introducing SEL principles and practices to larger groups of central office staff. Deepening expertise in SEL will be an ongoing process throughout implementation, with different timelines and approaches based on staffs' roles and needs.

Who should be involved?

Ideally, your district will support all staff in building a foundational level of SEL knowledge. Some of the district leaders you may wish to prioritize when developing a plan for building and deepening SEL expertise are:

- SEL lead and team
- District school board members
- The superintendent and cabinet
- Instructional leaders and coaches
- Professional learning leaders
- Principal development leaders
- Student behavior and supports leaders
- Key department leaders (such as equity, academics, etc.)
- Principal supervisors
- Human resources staff
- Budget/grants staff
- Union leaders
- Communications leader
- Family and community engagement leaders

Be aware, however, that the same type of SEL development session may not be appropriate for all the staff listed here. Some, like board members, need a higher-level, less practice-oriented understanding of SEL, while professional learning leaders and instructional leaders need more in-depth expertise. Learn more about how to differentiate your development sessions in the Process section.
This process will support districts in providing professional learning about SEL research and practice to enable central office staff to understand their role in integrating SEL into their area of work and to speak clearly about the value of SEL implementation.

Use the Rubric to assess your current level of implementation.

Although SEL expertise is important for a variety of central office leaders and staff, not all will need the same level of expertise. Before you begin planning engagement focused on SEL, think about the levels of engagement necessary for different groups of district staff.

You can use or adapt this Central Office Expertise Development Plan template as a starting point for mapping out who to engage and the level of expertise needed. Here is an example of Austin’s plan to develop SEL expertise, with differentiated learning plans for staff who are deeply, moderately, and least involved in strategic support for SEL implementation.

2. Design a central office professional learning program that addresses the staff groups you need to reach.

You’ll want to ensure you’ve planned professional learning that reaches leaders and staff from all departments, including foundational professional learning for all new staff. To further strengthen expertise, plan to convene SEL learning communities among central office staff.

There is a range of approaches you may choose to take when designing professional learning to meet the needs of the various groups you identified in Step 1. Reference the planning template and collection of resources as you prepare learning experiences for each group:

- Plan SEL Foundational Learning for your School District
- Strategies and Resources to Support Central Office Expertise
- An Introduction to Social and Emotional Learning – this free one-hour course can be taken individually online or facilitated with a small group. It includes videos, application activities, and discussion guides to follow up the initial learning experience.

If you plan to differentiate learning materials by student age to support the learning of leaders who focus on specific grade levels, reference this curated set of articles and videos organized by elementary, middle, and high school levels.

3. Assess how well professional learning prepares central office to support SEL implementation.

To ensure your professional learning program is strengthening central office expertise, you’ll want to regularly monitor how well central office staff understand their role in integrating SEL into their area of work and are able to speak clearly about the value of SEL. You may want to administer surveys or conduct interviews to help you collect this information.

Also consider whether key district leaders:
Advocate for SEL even when dedicated SEL staff aren't present.

Can explain the impact and value of SEL to any audience.

Can explain how SEL supports district priorities, equity, academic standards, and quality instructional practices.

Ask questions about and provide ideas for integrating SEL into their work.

Use this information to differentiate engagement strategies, highlight the voices of the strongest SEL advocates, focus efforts on new leaders and groups who are less conversant about SEL, and improve engagement strategies that have not been effective.

4. Monitor emerging opportunities to strengthen SEL expertise and sustain SEL as a priority for leadership.

As the district landscape changes, new leadership, strategies, and opportunities will call for renewed efforts to ensure SEL remains a priority among district leaders.

- Integrate SEL into conversations with funders, government officials, board members, and other potential supporters.
- Provide leaders with detailed statistics on implementation and metrics on student SEL outcomes in your district.
- Re-engage all leaders in advance of budgetary or strategic planning to keep SEL on the radar.
- Invite leaders to see SEL in action in your district or a district with more advanced implementation.
- Engage new leaders as they join the district or take on new roles.
- Report to the board of education about the district's progress and impact of SEL implementation at least once annually.

Ten years ago, CASEL began collaborating with school district SEL leaders to explore the question - Is it possible to implement SEL systemically to positively impact students across a large urban school district? Not only did districts demonstrate that it was possible, but every district has deepened and expanded SEL implementation since joining the collaborative. This anniversary report details 6 key insights from these districts about how they were able to sustain SEL over the long term, even as the people and contexts within the district changed.
